A Comparative Analysis of Legislators' Salaries, Remuneration and Benefits

A Comparative Analysis of Legislator's Salaries, Remuneration and Benefits

The analysis in this paper is made in response to a request by the National Taxpayers Association of Kenya (NTA). The analysis seeks to review legislator's salaries, remuneration and benefits in Kenya in comparison to other African and overseas countries. This will inform NTAs submission to the Salaries and Remuneration Commission's Third Public Sector Remuneration Review Cycle for the financial year 2021/22 – 2024/25. The countries included in this analysis are: Kenya, South Africa, Nigeria, Tanzania, Ghana, Uganda, Ivory Coast, Rwanda, Ethiopia, UK and USA. These countries were selected due to their geographical location and/or their economic characteristics, namely, a strong and effective public service.

Data Collection

This paper uses official government publications to collect data where possible. However, in many of the countries included, information on this topic is not regularly published by official bodies or in some cases, is not published at all. Therefore, the data available on parliamentary costs and members of parliament (MPs) salaries, remuneration and benefits is limited.

As a result, media reports and statements by MPs have been relied on as a source of information. It is recognised that media outlets may be biased and that individual MPs may have political or other personal motivations to give false information or statements. In order to minimise this risk, information has been cross checked across different sources where possible.

The Inter-Parliamentary Union Website 'Parline' has also been used as a source¹. Parline is a reference point for authoritative data on the parliaments of the world. It comprises 600+ data points for every country where there is a functioning parliament. Parline is produced with the cooperation of national parliaments, who provide and check the data through a network of Parline Correspondents.

Error Possibilities and Limitations

There are several significant error possibilities and limitations with this analysis.

- As information is not published or updated regularly, data may be outdated. Data publication years have been stated in this paper where available.
- For all countries included, there exists a wide-ranging salary scale between regular MPs and senior members, such as Party Leaders, Chairmen or Speakers. In countries with a bicameral legislature, there are also differences in salaries between members of different houses or chambers. This paper states the range of salaries for each country where available. The graphs in this paper (Figures 1, 2 and 4) aim to compare the base salary / salary of regular MPs. However, as information used in the analysis is collected from a variety of sources, there is a risk that different points on this salary scale are being compared.
- Countries adopt different methods of distributing allowances with varying degrees of oversight. In some, money is given directly to MPs as a lump sum whereas in others, money is given as a reimbursement for expenses. Alternatively, in some countries, money is given to a political party as a whole rather than individual MPs. This makes international comparisons difficult. It should be noted that the table in Figure 3 displays all known allowances. However, the graph in Figure 4 only refers to personal allowances.

- Some benefits are not quantifiable, for instance, immunity from crimes. These types of benefits, if known, are listed for each country under 'allowances' but are not included in the table or graphs.

Cost of Living Index

Prices of goods and services differ across countries. Typically, prices are higher in wealthier countries and lower in poorer countries: this is known as the Penn Effect.² Due to these price differences, making international comparisons using market currency exchange rates can provide an inaccurate picture. Instead, purchasing power parity (PPP) exchange rates are often used to adjust for the different costs of buying a similar basket of goods and services in each country.

In this paper, PPP exchange rates are not used as they reflect the average cost of living in the country as a whole. Many MPs will live in the city in which their Parliament is located or in other urban areas. In these cities, the cost of living is likely to be significantly higher than the average cost of living in the country, particularly in less developed countries. Instead, this paper uses a cost of living index which reflects, with reference to a base economy, the relative price of a given basket of goods and services in the particular city in which parliament is located for each country. The cost of living index used in this paper is provided by Numbeo.³

Recommendations

1. Some countries require information on legislator salaries, remuneration and benefits to be made accessible to the public while others do not. A study into transparency around this topic is necessary in order to understand the gaps in existing information.
2. It is recommended that an in-depth economic study into legislator salaries, remuneration and benefits should be carried out before usable conclusions can be drawn.

Country Comparison

The graph in Figure 2 displays the annual basic salary of MPs adjusted to reflect differences in local price levels. This is a better way to make international comparisons because it compensates for the different costs of living.

To calculate this, the annual basic salary is divided by the cost of living index for the city in which parliament is located for each country. The cost of living index reflects, with reference to a base economy, the relative price of a given basket of goods and services in that city.

Africa Check reports these allowances total between at KSh1.1 million monthly (US$127,000 annually) to KSh1.387 million monthly (US $158,000 annually).

South Africa

National Assembly: 350 to 400 members, National Council of Delegates (NCOP): 54 members

Legislation

The President sets the remuneration and benefits of members of parliament in exercise of the powers conferred by the Remuneration of Public Office Bearers Act 1998 Section 3(1)⁶. The most recent legal notice, Gazette Notice No. 43043, was published in 2020.

The Independent Commission for the Remuneration of Public Office Bearers annually publishes its recommendations concerning salaries, benefits and allowances of defined office-bearers. It obtains its mandate from Section 219 (2) of the Constitution and The Independent Commission for the Remuneration of Public Office Bearers Act⁷. The most recent legal notice, Gazette No.43019⁸, was published in 2020.

The Policy on Political Parties Allowances is available here.

Salaries

For the financial year 2019/2020 the Commission recommended a 3% increase in remuneration of public office bearers earning above R 1,500,000 and a 4% in remuneration of public office bearers earning below R 1,500,000. However, the president has announced he would not be increasing remuneration for the financial year 2019/2020.⁹

The 2020 Gazette Notice No. 43043¹⁰ sets out a total remuneration of R 1,137,933 (USD 69,153.90) for members of The NCOP and The National Assembly. Leaders of Minority Parties total remuneration is set at R 1,346,232 (USD 81,812.54) and Leaders of Majority Parties total remuneration is set at R 1,600,467 (USD 97,262.78). Deputy Speakers total remuneration is set at R 1,977,795 (USD 120,193.57) and Speaker of the National Assembly and Chairperson of the NCOP at R 2,825,470 (USD 171,708.05).

The total remuneration includes: a basic salary component equal to 60% which is pensionable (USD 41,492.34), an amount of R 120,000 (USD 7,292.58) which is part of the basic salary and is subject to income tax, an employer's pension benefit equal to 22.5% of the pensionable salary, and a flexible portion of the remaining total.

Allowances

Moloto Mothapo, a parliamentary spokesperson confirmed that MPs receive the following benefits¹¹:

- Travel: 88 single journeys a year (by air, train, bus or car), Travel to and from airports, Daily commuting , Parking at airports Travel for their dependants, Transport from the villages to parliament

- Office: Relocation, tools of trade, including a cellphone, tablet and laptop , Equipment and furniture for their offices, Stationery
- Relocation
- Personal accident insurance
- Accommodation in parliamentary villages (three complexes in Cape Town that house MPs when parliament is in session)

However, these are difficult to quantify due to unknown variables as the Ministerial Handbook, which outlines benefits and privileges, is kept as a "classified, confidential document" by the government.¹²

Section 77(2)(c) of the Constitution states that the National Assembly is entitled to financial and administrative assistance. As established in 1978 as a result of a Cabinet decision, political parties are entitled to Party Leader Allowance, Party Administrative Allowance and Constituency Allowance. These allowances are paid to the party as a whole and not to individual members. The total amount a party is entitled to is determined in proportion to its representation.

- Party Leader Allowance: Party leaders are entitled to appoint one grade 83 support staff member and the Majority Party Leader is entitled to appoint one grade C1 support staff member. Parties are entitled to additional support staff in proportion to their percentage of seats.

MPs can also claim the following publicly funded expenses:

- Travel costs: There is no limit on travel costs, MPs are reimbursed for standard fare public transport costs. MPs may also use private transport and will be reimbursed in accordance with the rates set by Parliament and administered by HMRC. They will be reimbursed for parking charges, congestion and road tolls but not any penalty charges. MPs will only be reimbursed for taxis and car hires in limited circumstances.
- Accommodation costs: MPs can claim accommodation costs either in London or their constituency (but not both). Eligible MPs can claim for accommodation in one of three ways: A rental property, along with its “associated costs” – mainly utilities and council tax (the annual London rental accommodation budget is £22,920 (USD 29,116.87) for 2019-2020); Hotel costs (up to a limit of £175 (USD 228.60) per night in London and £150 (USD 195.94) elsewhere in the UK); Associated costs only if they own the property (the annual budget limit for this is £5,270 (USD 6,884.07) in 2019-20). They cannot claim for cleaning, gardening, the purchase or maintenance of furniture, home contents insurance, television services or television licences. MPs can also claim a rental accommodation uplift for up to three dependents (the annual budget limit for this per dependent is £5,435/USD 7,099.60).

- London Area Living Payment (LALP): London area MPs are entitled to the LALP equal to £4,030 (USD 5,264.29) per financial year, payable on a monthly basis. MPs representing the outer London Area constituencies may claim an additional LALP of £1,430 (USD 1,867.97) per financial year.
- Office costs: These costs may include equipment, software and applications, phone usage including mobile phone and venue hire. The annual budget for office costs is £28,270 (USD 36,928.39) for London Area MPs, and £25,450 (USD 33,244.70) for non-London Area MPs for 2019-20.
- Staffing costs: The annual staffing budget is £166,930 (USD 21,8056.49) for London Area MPs and £155,930 (USD 203,687.46) for non-London Area MPs for 2019-20.
- Winding Up Budget: The winding-up budget is designed to meet the costs of completing the outstanding parliamentary functions of former MPs. For London Area MPs, the winding-up budget is £57,150 (USD 74,653.62) and for non-London Area MPs, the winding-up budget is £53,950 (USD 70,473.54).

- Disability Allowance
- Security: IPSA will pay for security measures recommended by the National Police Chiefs' Council.

Legislation

Article 1 of the Constitution authorises compensation for Members of Congress. Adjustments are governed by the Ethics Reform Act of 1989 and the 27th Amendment to the Constitution. The Congressional Research Service (CRS) publishes a report on Congressional Salaries and Allowances. The most recent report, published in 2019, is available here.

Salaries

The annual basic salary for all senators is currently USD 174,000. However, Senate leaders—majority and minority leaders, and the president pro tempore—have received higher salaries than other members. Currently, leaders earn USD 193,400 per year. For members of the House, the annual basic salary is currently USD 174,000. Majority and minority leaders received salaries of USD 193,400 and the Speaker of the House received a salary of USD 223,500 in 2019.

Allowances

Legislators are also entitled to the following allowances:

- Medical Benefit: Members may elect to be covered through the DC Health Link. Emergency medical assistance is provided by the Office of the Attending Physician. Members also are eligible to participate in the Federal Employees Group Life Insurance Program.

The amount of coverage for personal insurance is determined by a formula based on the coverage elected.

- Social Security and Retirement Benefit: Social Security participation is mandatory for all Members of Congress. The amount of any benefit and required retirement contribution varies depending on retirement plan, age, and length of service (with a minimum of at least five years of service for any benefit).
- The Members' Representational Allowance (MRA): The MRA is available to Members of the House of Representatives. The MRA may be used for official expenses including, for example, staff, travel, mail, office equipment, district office rental, stationery, and other office supplies. The MRA is calculated based on three components: Personnel (USD 944,671 for each Member in 2019 used to employ no more than 18 permanent employees); Official office expenses (varies); Official franked mail (varies). The three components are combined and result in a single MRA authorisation for each Representative that can be used to pay for any type of official expense. These allowances are authorised in statute and regulated and adjusted by the Committee on House Administration. In 2019, MRAs ranged from USD 1,320,585 to USD 1,498,546, with an average of USD 1,382,329.
- The Senators' Official Personnel and Office Expense Account (SOPOEA): The SOPOEA is available to Members of the Senate. The SOPOEA may be used for supporting personnel, office expenses, and mail. The administrative and clerical assistance allowance, the legislative assistance allowance and the official office expense allowance are combined to result in a single SOPOEA authorisation for each Senator that can be used to pay for any type of official expense. In 2019, the SOPOEA ranged from USD 3,436,535 to USD 5,421,200 with an average allowance of USD 3,738,775.

- Office Space in States, Including Mobile Office Space: Each Senator is authorised home state office space in federal buildings and may lease one mobile office for use only in the state he or she represents.
- Furniture and Furnishings: Each Senator is authorised furniture and furnishings from an approved list. Each Senator is authorised USD 40,000 for state office furniture and furnishings for one or more offices. The base authorisation is increased by USD 1,000 for each authorised additional incremental increase in office space.
- Office Equipment: Each Senator may use certain basic office equipment allocated in accordance with the population of the state he or she represents and other criteria established by the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration.
- Government Publications: Each Senator is entitled to receive certain government publications and printed products.
